Multicultural Thaipusam eve

IT was an Indian religious celebration with a touch of the Chinese culture when a lion dance troupe greeted the chariot upon its arrival at a booth in Jalan Datuk Keramat.

The lion dance performers were seen prancing to the beat of the Chinese drums and cymbals amid sounds of clattering sticks and echoing drums from the Kolattam performers at the three-dimensional booth Ivory Properties Group Berhad's booth here.

Management and employees had earlier taken a break from their work and waited by the road for the silver chariot to inch its way through the crowd so they could give their offerings to Lord Muruga.

Among them are Ivory Properties Group Berhad chairman and group chief executive officer Datuk Low Eng Hock, executive directors Ron Loh and Murly Manokharan, Lim Hock Siu and Dr Asairinachan Kunjambou.

Also present to join the group in offering flowers, fruits, incense, perfumed joss sticks and camphor was Komtar assemblyman Ng Wei Aik.

A long queue was seen at the stall of Ivorycares – the charitable arm of Ivory Properties Group Berhad – where the volunteers had prepared vegetarian food and drinks for some 2,000 devotees.

Ivorycares vice president Ann Tan said it was the sixth year the caring employees made their contributions to serve food and drinks for devotees.

“We have also stacked up 1008 coconuts on the road dividers for devotees and our employees to smash,” she said.
